you know, this was my one safe place to do fandom stuff.

internet fandom terrifies me. there's tons of swearing and inappropriate things that i don't want to see, it's filled with toxicity, content creators will be ripped apart for the slightest thing. i know not all of it is like that, but every foray into fandom feels like walking in a minefield.

this place was never like that. even in our darkest times, the WoFMB has always been a safe place where i could roleplay and share my writing and just...not be afraid of how people will respond. in fact, a big reason i've stayed here all this time was that i could post my fanfic. i wouldn't even know where to start with other places, and like i said, i'm terrified.

it's also been a place where i could make friends. i do have friends irl, but not many, and rn i interact with few enough people that i can't exactly find more. i've never really needed to, because i've had this place, and i was satisfied with that.

newsfeed is taking that away. the site has zero text editing capabilities, including (i hear) copy-and-paste, which is kind of vital for my fanficcing process, as i write all my fic offsite. it's not great for roleplaying, either, and it lags so much i can barely use it. unless they dramatically overhaul the systems so it doesn't lag so much, i probably can't come to homebase. i'll keep working on it, but it's looking less and less likely.

@the WoFMBers: thank you so much, for everything. all of you.

@the scholastic dev team: thanks a lot. i hope you're happy. (this is sarcasm, in case you're wondering.)
